

HEB

Journal of Hospital Pharmacy
An Official Publication of Bureau for Health & Education Status Upliftment
(Constitutionally Entitled As Health-Education, Bureau)

JOHP

Interpretation of Clinical Laboratory Data

Dr. M. Sri Ramachandra, B. Ankitha, D. Chaitanya dixit

Dr. M. Sri Ramachandra ^{M.Pharm, PhD} Professor & Head of Department, Department of Pharmacology, Dr. K. V. Subba Reddy institute of pharmacy Dupadu, Kurnool. 518218

B. Ankitha student Dr. K. V. Subba reddy institute of pharmacy dupadu, Kurnool. 518218

Email: bollaankitha3@gmail.com

D. Chaitanya dixit ^{M. Pharm} Associate Professor Dept. of Pharmaceutical Analysis, Dr. K. V. Subba reddy institute of pharmacy Dupadu, Kurnool. 518218

Email Id: serviceheb@gmail.com

Abstract:

Clinical lab data are crucial for diagnosis, prognosis, and treatment monitoring. Accurate interpretation requires understanding reference ranges, variability, and potential errors, while considering patient factors. Correlating lab results with clinical information prevents misinterpretation, ensures effective therapy, reduces adverse reactions, and improves patient safety.

Key words: Diagnosis, Prognosis, Interpretation, patient safety

Access this Article Online

Website: <http://www.journalofhospitalpharmacy.in> Quick Response Code:

Received on 22/10/2025
Accepted on 08/11/2025 © HEB All rights reserved

